Taxi association head asks Stampede-goers to be patient

Many of Calgary's 1,400 cabs will work around the clock during the Stampede, but the head of the livery association is still asking for patience from those seeking a ride.

"We are going to be out there — it's going to be busy," Kurt Enders said. "A good portion of the tourists here are going to need taxis. The nice thing is it's spread over an 18-hour period."

Enders said predictions of record attendance at the 100th edition of the Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth will likely stretch the city's fleet a bit, but pointed out that veteran drivers know all the hot spots for passengers.

He anticipated wait times will remain comparable to average Friday and Saturday nights.

But critics with the Calgary Cab Drivers Association and some aldermen have long called for a boost to the city-wide fleet, with some supporting even a temporary licence bump for special occasions, like the Stampede.

City council did approve 55 new taxi licences in May, but those will not be distributed until the end of July.

Enders urged Stampede-goers to plan ahead and avoid taking any frustrations they might have out on drivers.

"Stampede this year is going to be very hectic.... You can only do so much," he said. "Be patient."

Impaired. Fatigue behind wheel over extended periods as drunk driving, expert says

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

City taxi drivers are revving up to reel in some major Stampede dough, but some may be putting their lives — and the lives of others — at risk, according to an expert.

Rajiv Kapil with the Calgary Cab Drivers Association said some peers have indicated to him they plan to work as much as 14 to 16 hours straight during the Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth.

"It's dangerous, but many of the drivers are thinking they need to make the money," he said. "I don't do it, personally. I have a choice: work or live. I choose to live."

Dr. Adam Moscovitch, a sleep specialist and associate clinical professor at the University of Calgary, deemed Kapil's claim about the long hours some plan to

Sticking to 10

- Kurt Enders with Check Yellow Cabs admitted his drivers will be busy during the Stampede, but said most would typically stick to a 10-hour shift.

work deeply disturbing.

He pointed to an Australian study a few years ago that found drivers operating 16 hours without sleep have a reaction time similar to that of someone with a .05 blood-alcohol rate.

"It gets worse," he said.

"After about three days of doing these shifts, particularly at night, the impact of fatigue is significantly increased."

Kapil said there is no regulation on the number of hours a taxi driver can work, but he thinks some form of regulation should be explored going forward.

Given that, Moscovitch said the onus is on the passenger to ensure their safety when they climb into a cab.

"If somebody told me they started driving 14-16 hours ago, I would tell them to stop and (I would) get out of the cab," he said.

Threats of gang hits common: Police

Homicide. Police assure public they are doing their best to suppress gang activity following recent fatal shooting in restaurant

ALICIA GERRIO
@metronews.ca

While the recent homicide at a Calgary restaurant is the first fatal shooting tied to gangs in three years, police said they inform local gang members they are being targeted almost weekly.

"Gang violence is cyclical in nature," said acting Insp. Martin Schiavetta.

"When we're dealing with people involved in gangs, when we're warning them, they already know, usually before we do, that their life is in danger," Schiavetta added.

An innocent man is dead, and three others injured, from last weekend's shooting at Basil Ultimate Pho and Fine Vietnamese Cuisine.

Witnesses said two men hidden under hoods charged into the restaurant and began firing at the approximately 50 people.

Gang association

- In Calgary, established gang members often "sell" newer members to other gangs because they are no longer useful to their gang.
- "Associating with a gang member puts you in as much risk as the gang member itself," said Acting Insp. Martin Schiavetta

Their intended target remains in hospital.

Schiavetta said the police are doing their best to suppress gang activity in the city, and they're starting with Calgary youth.

"In regards to young people, we are trying to de-glamourize lifestyle(s) of gangs," Schiavetta said. But he added that youth still have many misconceptions about gang-lifestyles.

"The drug trade still offers young people a mistaken belief that they can obtain wealth in a fast manner, but the reality is, like our campaign has said for a number of years, either you go to jail or unfortunately, you're killed."

Calgary police are seen at the scene of a weekend gang shooting at Basil Ultimate Pho and Fine Vietnamese Cuisine. Suppressing gang activity has remained a priority even during non-violent times, acting Insp. Martin Schiavetta. METRO FILE

Stampede brings some less-favourable business to town

Police say they crack down on johns year-round — even during the Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth. METRO FILE Entrepreneurs from near and far are flocking to Calgary for the Stampede, including some with less-than-savoury propositions.

Police staff Sgt. Robert Rutledge said his vice unit notices a slight increase in street-walking sex workers during the 10 days of festivities, but the real jump is seen online, with postings advertising everything from legitimate escort services to bondage.

"I think the draw is Stampede has one million visitors," he said. "There are people here that are possibly away from home, away from family, and may be out here on business."

Proof of Rutledge's claim was in plain view online Thursday.

"Early Stampede specials all you can handle Specials," reads one post, on the site backpage.com, that indicates a woman is open to payment for sex.

Another woman went so far as to post a photo of herself in skimpy Stampede attire with the tagline, "Save a Horse Ride a Cowboy ... YEE HAW."

Rutledge said police routinely crack down on online prostitution but admitted the

Escort services

There are currently 19 legitimately licensed escort services in Calgary; however, police have recently reported a sharp rise in the number of short-term visitors to the city offering similar services.

emerging trend in the sex industry poses some logistical difficulties for his investigators.

Still, some women advertising sexual services seemed unfazed by potential legal reprimand when contacted by Metro on Thursday.

"Of course we are busy," said one woman, who asked not to be identified. "The whole town's in party mode."

But Rutledge cautioned any Stampede partiers to think twice before offering cash in exchange for sexual favours.

Johns caught communicating for the process of prostitution in a public setting can have their vehicle seized by Calgary police until the matter is resolved in court.

AFTER 100 YEARS, IT'S TIME TO USHER IN A STAMPEDE CONTRACT

IN DEFENCE OF Mike Morrison
calgary@metronews.ca

The Calgary Stampede is the one time of year when everyone, no matter the age, always has a good time. The thing is, we don't always have fun doing the same things.

The Stampede grounds are a melting pot of almost every kind of person known to man. There are the young families, the rodeo fanatics, the tweens who waste their allowance trying to win giant teddy bears, the carnies and almost everyone in between.

So you'd be naïve to think that all of those people will get along, right?

That's why I think that when you buy your tickets to the grounds, you should sign some sort of a contract. This contract wouldn't be too long or extensive, but it would require you to follow a few simple rules helping to ensure that everyone has a great Stampede.

First things first: Grown-ups must promise not to swear, smoke or spit in front of children — only if parents promise to recognize that their children are not the only ones on the Stampede grounds.

A few simple rules

Grown-ups must promise to not swear, smoke or spit in front of children — only if parents promise to recognize that their children are not the only ones on the Stampede grounds.

This includes preventing them from running all over the place, screaming relentlessly, and/or having to give up our seats to Super Dogs just because a child really wants a better view.

Secondly, grocery carts are not allowed on the grounds, so strollers the size of grocery carts shouldn't be allowed either.

Parents, I get that this might require a little more planning on your end, so, as part of the contract, those of us without kids will promise to not act like children.

This includes loud cellphone conversations about inappropriate things, such as bragging about being able to stay up until sunrise and showing off tattoos that we don't remember getting.

Finally — a lot of people hook up during Stampede.

Even the Calgary police have said the city will see an increase in prostitutes walking our fine streets. Turns out the greatest part of the Stampede isn't always the outdoor show. So, by signing this contract, we'll promise to be cool about hooking up. That means no cheating.

The contract will also force friends to keep an eye on their friends, so that if they do hook up, they'll at least be going home with someone for more than the fact they look good in a cowboy hat.

Really, when the rodeo dust settles and Stampede is all said and done, you'd rather be going through funny cellphone photos, not lining up at the sexual-health clinic.

Enjoy your 10 days of Stampede, Calgary!

Calgarian selected for simulated Mars mission

Study. NASA scientists to evaluate healthy food choices for potential mission to Red Planet

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Simon Engler sees himself as a typical engineer — cooking is not his strong suit.

But NASA scientists will soon put him and five others skilled in areas other than the culinary arts to the test as part of a simulated mission to Mars.

Quoted

"For me, I have a 'see food, eat food' policy.... It's pretty hard to find food that I won't eat."

Simon Engler, who was chosen to be part of a study on nutrition for a potential mission to Mars

A voyage to the Red Planet would take anywhere from two to three years, which creates difficulties associated with maintaining a healthy and nutritious diet for the astronauts aboard.

Next year, Engler will be put through the paces for four months to determine proper training techniques and food choices for a potential mission to Mars.

Reached by phone Thursday after learning he'd been chosen for the study, Engler welcomed the opportunity and said he's not worried about his Mars-bound menu options.

The former University of Calgary student figures the food aboard a space shuttle can be no worse than the military rations he routinely ate while on a 10-month combat tour in Afghanistan in 2009.

"There was only one of those I really liked," he said of the rations. "It was the chili."

Engler is no stranger to the spotlight either.

While overseas, he developed a robotics platform that could roll over Afghan terrain in search of objects planted by enemies.

The creation gained widespread media attention and is now on display in Calgary's Military Museums.

When asked if he would ever consider devoting years of his life toward a real trip to Mars, Engler didn't hesitate. "Oh yeah, absolutely, in a minute," he said.

Peak service. Stampede time means extra cash for Calgary Transit

With thousands of additional passengers on trains and buses during the 10 days of Stampede, Calgary Transit is expecting revenue to get a boost as well.

Ron Collins, a Calgary Transit spokesperson, said Stampede is the busiest time of year, with CTrain service operating 24 hours throughout.

"Last year during the 10 days of the Stampede, we raised approximately an additional $755,000 in revenue, said Collins. "It will likely be around the same this year."

Collins said with so many additional people using the system, safety is a priority.

"You can appreciate we have thousands and thousands of people to move on our buses and trains, so exercise a little patience."

Despite not being a big fan of pancakes, one Calgary man is challenging himself to eat 10 days of free meals all in an effort to embrace Stampede culture.

In the 13 years Jamie Bater has lived in Calgary, he estimates he may have been to five Stampede breakfasts. That number is about to skyrocket.

"Most of Stampede in my adulthood has been spent going out at night, drinking beers and not really getting in touch with the Stampede culture Calgary has," he said.

"I thought, It's the 100th anniversary — it would be nice to see that side of things."

For 10 days, Bater said, he'll document all the free, public breakfasts, lunches and dinners he eats on his blog Stampede Starvation, posting photos and even tracking his weight.

"I live downtown — breakfasts should be nice and easy," he said. "It's the dinners that are the scary parts right now."

Case of Edmonton man accused in armoured-car shooting put over in court

An Alberta man accused in the shooting deaths of three fellow armoured-car guards is next to appear in court Aug. 16.

Neither Travis Baumgartner nor his lawyer appeared when his case came up briefly in an Edmonton court Thursday.

Baumgartner, 21, is charged with first-degree murder, attempted murder and robbery with a firearm.

Police say he was one of five armed guards loading a bank machine at the University of Alberta on June 15 when shots rang out.

Brian Ilesic, 35, Eddie Rejano, 39, and Michelle Shegelski, 26, died at the scene.

Another guard, Matthew Schuman, is recovering in hospital from bullet wounds to the head.

They were all employees of G4S Canada. Baumgartner was arrested a day later as he tried to cross the Canada-U.S. border with $334,000 in a backpack.

Mountie beats the skins with band on camping trip in the woods

A new YouTube video shows a Mountie not just walking a beat — but rocking it.

The video posted by a user who lives in Lethbridge in southern Alberta shows a group of friends camping in the woods with their band gear when a cop car pulls up.

The posting says the chums thought they'd done something wrong when the officer came over, but he grabbed a guitar and played a bit before jumping behind a drum set.

The video entitled "Coolest Cop Ever Playing Drums in the Woods" isn't clear where the jam session happened. So far the video has had nearly 200,000 views.

Pecking order

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (1937): You really can't get more romantic than the spell-breaking power of love's first kiss. Throw in Doc, Grumpy, Happy, Sleepy, Bashful, Sneezy, and Dopey, plus a Noah's Ark's worth of cuddly woodland creatures looking all weepy-eyed before the prince's peck, and the anticipation is bases-loaded heart-thumping. Then Snow White awakens from her poisoned-apple coma and the crowd goes crazy as the heroine and her hero ride off into the sunset.

Lady and the Tramp (1955): After they each slurp down a strand from a shared plate of spaghetti, the restaurateur enhances the mood by serenading the star-crossed pooches with Bella Notte on his accordion. While lost in the melody, they find themselves munching on opposite ends of a long noodle. The brief snout-on-snout action is cut short by Lady's shyness, but then Tramp nuzzles a meatball toward her and puppy love twinkles in both their eyes.

Planet of the Apes (1968): "Doctor, I'd like to kiss you goodbye," Taylor says. "All right ... but you're so damned ugly," replies Zira before allowing Charlton Heston to peck her on the lips. It's the last sweet interspecies moment in the sci-fi classic before the famous "damn you all to hell" denouement, when the astronaut sees the remnants of the Statue of Liberty while riding along the shoreline and comes to the stunning realization that he's not on an alien planet after all, but on a post-apocalyptic Earth.

Ghost (1990): The steamy potter's-wheel scene, with Patrick Swayze placing his hands over Demi Moore's clay-covered fingers and nibbling on her neck, while the Righteous Brothers' 'Unchained Melody' plays in the background, jump-started a glaze craze that is still with us over 20 years later. The scene has been paid homage to and parodied ad nauseum, most recently in an episode of NBC's Community, where a pottery teacher adopts a zero-Ghost-tolerance policy of both "ironic" and "sincere" re-enactments.

Spider-Man (2002): "You have a knack for saving my life. I think I have a superhero stalker," a rain-soaked Mary-Jane (Kirsten Dunst) teases before pulling away half of Spider-Man's (Tobey Maguire) mask to access his lips. The ensuing dangling, upside-down smooch inspired thousands of couples to try the move out on jungle gyms and other inversion apparatuses. Home-gamers recreating the tender Spidey moment, here's a tip: The horizontal version is a lot safer.

Twilight (2008): "Just stay very still ... don't move," Edward warns while leaning in. A breathy makeout session is always more exciting when there's a chance a vampire's hormones will go out of control and the affair will turn into a bloodletting. The chaste passion between Bella and her sensitive bloodsucker boyfriend (they wait four movies and until marriage before going all the way) stirred up an uproar in some circles with debates raging about whether they should condone or condemn the fictional relationship.

Nothing wrong with a little affection

Survey. Most Canadians unfazed by PDA

LIA GRAINGER
calgary@metronews.ca

Are you a fan of the PDA? Friday is International Kissing Day, and a new survey from the matchmaking website Zoosk.com has found the vast majority of Canadians have no problems puckering up in public.

Of the more than 1,163

The history of the kiss

- Prehistoric times. Couples kiss to taste saliva and find a suitable mate.
- 1500 BC. Vedic Sanskrit texts from India reference "drinking moisture of the lips."
- 300 AD. The Kama Sutra contains an entire chapter on the art of kissing.

- 0-500 AD. The Romans, a kiss-crazy people, spread the practice across their empire.
- 1872. Charles Darwin hypothesizes that kissing is an innate urge all humans share.

Canadians surveyed, a whopping 93 per cent confessed they were fine with public displays of affection. Women are ever-so-slightly more modest than their male counterparts: 51 per cent of the ladies who responded said that public kissing in moderation is fine, while 61 per cent of the fellas said anything goes.

"The high numbers of people that are OK with PDA is indicative of our easygoing tolerance and acceptance — qualities that are consummately Canadian," says Toronto etiquette expert Karen Cleveland. She says that attitudes towards kissing in public have softened over the years, but is quick to warn there is still such a thing as going too far.

"A good rule of thumb is to avoid doing anything you'd be embarrassed to do in front of your grandparents," says Cleveland. "That means no groping and no tongue."

Dating consultant Shannon Tebb says location matters. "If you're on a subway car or in a doctor's office — anywhere confined with other people — it's probably best to avoid big displays," says Tebb. "If you're on the street, it's more acceptable."

If you've decided to go for the public smooch, why not make your partner happy? According to Zoosk.com, most Canadian men prefer sensual kisses on the lips, while the majority of women like the so-called French kiss.

Those with female partners should be extra observant, as most women said being with a good kisser is important. But men were less concerned because their partners "may be better at other things." We'll let you ponder that one for yourselves.

We asked: What was your worst kiss?

"After a bag of nacho-cheese Doritos. Full-on tongue. That was terrible."

Rachel Fine, 27, master's student/bartender

"My first spin-the-bottle in Grade 7. I had never French kissed. He came at me tongue out."

Melanie Spence, 28, unemployed

"Truth-or-dare in high school. It was one of those friends you just don't want to kiss."

Natisha Cohen, 27, instructor

"It involved a lot of teeth, which is never good."

Shane Adamczak, 29, performer

"In high school with this really dumb guy. I don't know why I was with him."

Natalie Bartlett, 27, registered nurse

"I've never had (a bad) one. Kisses are great."

Evan Thompson, 49, philosophy teacher

Canada not helping jailed citizen in China, wife says

Dissent. Refugee who spoke against human rights abuses in China serving life in prison

The wife of a Canadian citizen who is serving a life sentence in China for speaking out on behalf of the country's Uighur minority says the Canadian government has all but forgotten about him.

Kamila Telendibaeva says her husband, Huseyin Celil, a refugee from China's troubled Xinjiang region, has been punished because he spoke out about the democratic and religious rights for the Muslim minority group.

Human rights activists say Beijing considers anyone in the Uighur community who attempts to promote their culture or religious values, or who speaks out about greater autonomy for the Uighur people, a terrorist.

Junior foreign affairs minister Diane Ablonczy says her department was engaged in Celil's case but admits diplomatic hurdles complicated the government's attempt to push for his release.

Celil escaped from China in 1994 when the terrorism charges first surfaced. In 2006, while visiting his wife's family in Uzbekistan, Celil was detained by Uzbek police and deported to China without the consent of the Canadian government.

Members of the Uighur community gathered outside the Chinese consulate in Toronto on Thursday to mark the third anniversary of the deadly 2009 riots.

Attending the rally was important for a 19-year-old Uighur refugee seeking political asylum in Canada. She said her brother was arrested during the riots and several of her classmates disappeared.

"That's why I've come here, because they could not say anything," said Miyesser, who did not want her last name used for fear her political activism could put the lives of her family, who are still in China, at risk.

"This is a free country and maybe I can make their words heard," she said through a translator.

Celil's wife said it's been months since she last received an update on her husband's case from the Canadian government.

"I'm frustrated," Telendibaeva told The Canadian Press. "I didn't receive anything from the Foreign Affairs Department and I didn't get any information from the Chinese authorities." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stunt. Korean-reunification activist arrested in South after symbolic stint in North

A South Korean activist was arrested as soon as he set foot on home soil Thursday, resisting police in a stunt of defiance after an unapproved, three-month stay in the North.

Turning around to face crowds of cheering North Koreans before stepping over the line, No Su-hui raised his arms and shouted "Long live reunification," a white unified-Korea flag in his right hand and a bouquet of flowers in his left. Behind him on the South Korean side, soldiers stood in taekwondo poses, their eyes concealed behind dark sunglasses.

The stunt by No, 68, was designed to draw attention to the division of the Korean Peninsula. He had gone to Pyongyang from China in March even though South Koreans are prohibited from travelling to North Korea without government approval.

"The conservative forces are saying they will put me on trial, but I will judge them," No said. "Please watch and see what will happen."

dressed in a grey suit and white tie, with a pin of unified Korea on his jacket. His pointed decision to cross back through the truce village of Panmunjom was a highly symbolic move to draw attention to his cause. Most tourists must enter and exit North Korea via China.

No, who went to Pyongyang to pay his respects to Kim Jong Il on the 100th day after his death, visited major tourist sites and met with North Korean officials during his visit, North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said.

Leaked emails reveal Italy's ties to Syria

WikiLeaks. Material is embarrassing to both Syria and the country's opponents: Assange

The first batch of 2.4 million emails from Syria being released by the whistleblowing WikiLeaks reveals alleged high-level deals by an international arms and telecom supplier to equip the regime.

The 16-month uprising in Syria against the government of President Bashar Assad has killed at least 10,000 people, according to United Nations figures.

Finmeccanica "sold to Syria ... the Tetra system, a communications network that allows conversations and transmission of data,"

Whistleblower

"It helps us not merely to criticize one group or another, but to understand their interests, actions and thoughts. It is only through understanding this conflict that we can hope to resolve it."

WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange in a statement on the group's website L'Espresso newspaper reported Thursday. Finmeccanica is 30 per cent owned by the Italian government.

The $50 million system allowed interception-proof encrypted communications that could connect to any vehicle, including helicopters.

Part of the export, the report said, "must be authorized by the Italian government." The contract, it said, dates back to 2008 and reveals "the relationship with the Italian parent (company) for the Syrian program has been intense and continuous."

Finmeccanica, a supplier to the U.S. Defense Department, also sold its technology to the Iranian Interior Ministry in 2007, the Spanish publication Publico.ex reported.

The Finmeccanica story is the first of many to come "over the months and years" from the email cache, WikiLeaks' Sarah Harrison told journalists at London's Frontline Club Thursday.

The WikiLeaks database comprises 2,434,899 emails from 680 domains, the site said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Argentina

Junta dictator gets 50 years in prison

Former Argentine dictator Jorge Rafael Videla was convicted and sentenced to 50 years Thursday for executing a systematic plan to steal babies from prisoners who were kidnapped, tortured and killed during the military junta's war on leftist dissenters three decades ago.

The baby thefts set Argentina's 1976-1983 military junta apart from all the others that ruled in Latin America at the time. Videla and the rest of the junta were determined to remove any trace of the armed leftist guerrilla movement that they felt threatened the country's future. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Air France. Crash probe cites faulty equipment and pilot mistakes

A combination of faulty sensors and mistakes by inadequately trained pilots caused an Air France jet to plunge into the Atlantic Ocean in 2009, killing all 228 people aboard in the airline's deadliest ever crash, French investigators with the Bureau for Investigations and Analysis said Thursday.

They are urging better instruction for pilots on flying manually at high altitudes and stricter plane-certification rules after a three-year investigation.

Airbus, the plane's manufacturer, said in a statement that it is working to improve speed sensors and making other efforts to avoid future accidents.

Air France insisted the pilots "acted in line with the information provided by the cockpit instruments and systems.... The reading of the various data did not enable them to apply the appropriate action."

A separate French judicial investigation is still underway, and Air France and Airbus have been handed preliminary manslaughter charges.

The bureau's analysis lists a combination of "human and technical factors" behind the crash. The plane flying from Rio de Janeiro to Paris slammed into the sea during a nighttime thunderstorm on June 1, 2009.

Easy to detect. But malware could knock thousands offline

The warnings about the Internet problem have been splashed across Facebook and Google. Internet service providers have sent notices, and the FBI set up a special website. But hundreds of thousands of people around the world may still lose their Internet service Monday unless they do a quick check of their computers for malware that could have taken over their machines more than a year ago.

Despite repeated alerts, the number of computers that are likely infected is more than 277,000 world-wide, down from about 360,000 in April.

Users whose computers are still infected Monday will lose their ability to go online, and they will have to call their service providers for help deleting the malware and reconnecting to the Internet. THE CANADIAN PRESS

WestJet reports growth in June

WestJet Airlines said its flights had fewer empty seats in June compared with a year ago as the airline also increased capacity.

Calgary-based WestJet reported Thursday a load factor — the proportion of seats filled on its flights — of 79 per cent for June, up from 75.7 per cent in June 2011 when Air Canada suffered a brief strike by its customer-service agents. The increase came as passenger traffic climbed 6.7 per cent from the same time last year, while capacity increased 2.3 per cent.

"Advanced bookings for July and August remain strong," WestJet CEO Gregg Saretsky said in a statement.

Meanwhile, regional carrier Porter Airlines reported a load factor of 62 per cent for June, down from 64.6 per cent a year ago.

Cabinet upholds competition between phone companies

Prime Minister Stephen Harper's cabinet has upheld a CRTC ruling that allows big telephone companies to compete against smaller ones in rural areas.

Smaller phone companies from Ontario, Quebec and B.C. petitioned cabinet to overturn a May 2011 decision by Canada's telecom regulator to allow competition in some rural and remote parts of the country. Those areas had been protected from competition by regulations that allowed for only one service provider.

Those representing small independent telephone companies had argued the CRTC ruling meant the big companies would be free to offer telephone services to homes passed by their cable networks, while ignoring potential customers in remote areas. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sluggish economy slows spending in June

Appetite to hire down since 2011

Survey. 40 per cent of hiring managers planning to bring on new full-timers in second half of 2012

Employer concern

The competition for talent was also reflected in employer responses, with 44 per cent acknowledging they were concerned about losing valued workers.

A new survey suggests fewer Canadian employers expect to add more permanent full-time jobs in the second half of 2012 than they did in last year's poll.

The Harris Interactive survey found that 40 per cent of hiring managers said they were planning to hire new permanent, full-time employees by the end of the year, compared with 43 per cent in the second half of 2011.

The countrywide survey was conducted between May 14 and June 4 on behalf of website CareerBuilder Canada.

Results from among 292 hiring managers and human-resource professionals contacted found that in addition to the 40 per cent who expected to add high full-time employees, 22 per cent planned to add part-time workers and 26 per cent contract or temporary employees.

"Canada's job market continues to grow with jobs opening up in a wide variety of functions and industries," said Brent Rasmussen, president of CareerBuilder North America.

"(But) while employers are more confident about their revenue prospects and expansion opportunities in the back half of 2012, they remain watchful of the global economic recovery and market dynamics in their own backyard."

Tim Hortons. Coffee chain to introduce free Wi-Fi

Double-double addicts will soon have another reason to stop into one of the thousands of Tim Hortons outlets across the country.

The coffee-and-doughnut chain announced Thursday that it is working to roll out free wireless Internet to more than 2,000 locations. It expects 90 per cent of its so-called "traditional" outlets across Canada will offer free Wi-Fi by September.

The plan does not include its non-traditional outlets, including kiosks, gas stations and hospital locations.

MARRIAGE: IMPOSSIBLE

THE LIST
Neil Morton
Metro

1 Tom Cruise at 50: It's been only seven years since the Scientologist jumped on Oprah's couch to profess his love for Katie Holmes. Now with a pending divorce (Katie apparently wants to protect her daughter Suri from being indoctrinated into Scientology), things are not looking up for Cruise, who turned 50 this week. Eyes Wide Shut.

2 Anderson Cooper: The CNN anchor came out of the closet this week. "The fact is, I'm gay, always have been, always will be, and I couldn't be any more happy, comfortable with myself, and proud," he wrote in an email published on his friend Andrew Sullivan's blog. Cooper decided he was doing more harm than good by not coming out. Kudos.

3 Soccer: Spain staked its claim as being one of the best teams in world football history by winning a record third straight major title, routing Italy 4-0 in the Euro 2012 final. What Italy did show is they have one of the more dynamic and stylin' young strikers in football — Mario (Super Mario) Balotelli.

4 Good Afternoon America: Good Morning America is getting a nine-week summer afternoon spinoff series in Good Afternoon America. It launches on Monday, and if ratings go well and the show continues in the fall, could we see a Good Night America spinoff? Nah, that name is too ominous.

5 Steve Nash: Canada was having Steve Nash fever, with basketball fans across the country salivating at the prospect of the star signing with the Toronto Raptors. But it was all just a Hollywood dream with no happy ending, as Nash instead went to the L.A. Lakers where he will play with Kobe. And win a title.

6 Carly Rae Jepsen: The pop sensation came to Peterborough, Ont., Wednesday, performing to one of the largest crowds in the history of the city's Little Lake Musicfest. She had the fans in the palm of her hands, finishing the night with them singing along to her summer hit Call Me Maybe. I was there with my daughters, and, shh, was singing right along.

7 London calling: Jessica Zelinka announced herself as possibly Canada's best female athlete, winning the 100-metre hurdles shortly after breaking her own Canadian record in the heptathlon. She tweeted about her next step: a berth in the Summer Olympics. "@JessicaZelinka: Crashing after riding the high all week. Thanks for sharing this crazy journey with me. London here we come!"

8 Chris Brown: The bad rapper wannabe released a new verse on a remixed track, I Don't Like, ripping his adversary Drake for their nightclub brawl in June. Brown slams Drake for "throwin' bottles" while he himself is "throwin' models." This stupid boy fight over Rihanna has evolved into the dumbest hip hop beef in music history.

9 Jose Bautista: The slugger earned his third straight all-star berth when major league baseball announced its starting lineups for next week's game in Kansas City. Bautista, who set a Blue Jays record with 14 homers in the month of June, is the silver lining on a Jays team that is going downhill fast with all their injured starting pitchers.

10 Doug Pitt: Brad Pitt's little brother Doug stars in a rather quirky commercial that went viral for Virgin Mobile Australia. In the ad, titled, "Meet Doug Pitt, the second most famous Pitt in his family," we're given a tour by Doug inside his middle-class home and lifestyle. No, Angelina Jolie's brother James Haven does not make a cameo.

11 Train: Train is on a big U.S. tour but is making two Canadian stops next week, one in Montreal (July 10) and the next night in Toronto. So if you're proposing to your girlfriend this summer, the perfect time to do it is with a flash mob at their concert when they're singing Marry Me.

12 Detroit zombie theme park: A Detroit company, Z World Detroit LLC., wants to turn one of the city's abandoned neighbourhoods into a massive zombie theme park. Now there's sure to be a lot of political red tape, but it's definitely one of the more creative solutions proposed to helping turn Detroit's economy around — and a radical rethinking of urban redevelopment.

Raising awareness for euthanized dogs

Taiwanese photographer Tou Chih-kang tries to make a portrait of a puppy in the final moments of its life before being put down at a shelter in Taoyuan, northern Taiwan, in this April photo.

Chih-kang has been visiting dog shelters for two years now, making human-like portraits that give a sense of dignity and esteem to some 400 canines, in hopes of educating the public on the proper care of pets.

Activists say that some 70 per cent of dogs in Taiwanese shelters are killed after a 12-day waiting period.

The pictures are Tou Chih-kang's way of trying to encourage responsibility among Taiwanese dog owners, who abandon their pets when they tire of them.

His photos will be exhibited in a full-scale show in southern Taiwan next month. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MARK BRESLIN

Stone's Savages — flamboyant and fun

Standard drug flick. Savages ticks each requisite off the list — a California cutie, a threesome and Benicio Del Toro as a Mexican bad guy

Richard: Mark, I knew I was in for an over-the-top Oliver Stone movie from Savages' opening minutes. The "wargasm" reference was my first clue and by the time Benicio Del Toro literally twirled his moustache like a pantomime baddie, I knew this wasn't the same director who gave us W and World Trade Center; this is Stone in Natural Born Killers mode. It's wild, but I found it more flamboyant than fun. You?

Mark: Well, Richard, let's see

... guns, drugs, threesomes; sounds like hanging out with Sam Kinison in the '80s. Actually, I think this is Stone's best picture since Reagan was President. He's working viscerally here and you can feel everything: the coastal languors of Laguna Beach, the scuzziness of Mexican border towns, Blake Lively's silken suntan. For a violent popcorn movie, I found it pretty sensual. Did you think the leads held their own with the scenery?

RC: It's definitely a good-looking movie from the stars to the scenery, but I thought the cast was really interesting as well as pretty. Johnson and Kitsch are good and evil, flip sides of the same coin. Lively isn't as sprightly as her name might suggest, but she does do damaged quite well. I also enjoyed Travolta, Hayek and Del Toro chewing the scen-

Synopsis

Aaron Johnson and Taylor Kitsch are Ben and Chon, entrepreneurs, drug dealers and two thirds of a love triangle with California cutie Ophelia (Blake Lively). They sell a potent strain of legal medical grade marijuana but also siphon off some for illicit practice and profit, which earns the attention of a Mexican Baja drug Cartel run by Elena (Salma Hayek). She'll do anything to create a "joint" venture, including kidnapping their shared paramour.

ery but I felt it hard to care about any of them. They're all rather despicable, and I found myself hoping they'd all end up in a Mexican standoff.

MB: Well, it is a drug movie after all, so you know there will be double-crosses galore. I think you're supposed to care about the Blake Lively character, as the innocent of the bunch, but she's a bit vapid to really identify with. Del Toro makes, as usual, a great bad-die, although Travolta stole the show for me with his corrupt DEA agent. But you'd think for a guy on the take, he'd have a much better haircut.

RC: Ha! It's a haircut almost as bad as the ending. No spoilers ... but it felt like a cheat.

MB: The ending wants to have its pot brownie and eat it too, but I appreciated the attempt to play with the narrative and our expectations. For me, it was flamboyant and fun.

Spystyle

If there's one thing James Bond has taught us, it's that behind every great spy is a great tailor. A new exhibition at London's Barbican Centre explores the style of the suave secret agent, displaying costumes, props, set pieces and design drawings from half a century of 007 films. Assembled with help from the films' producers, the exhibition includes the spy's tuxedos, Bond girl ballgowns and villains' vestments, as well as a selection of props, gadgets and sketches of the films' exotic sets. It pays tribute to the British, European and American craftspeople and designers who have created the look of the quintessentially British icon. "Designing 007" opens Friday and runs to Sept. 5. It will then tour internationally, opening at the TIFF Bell Lightbox in Toronto in October.

The Samaritan

Director. David Weaver

Stars. Samuel L. Jackson, Luke Kirby, Ruth Negga

After serving 25 years in prison, Foley (Jackson) wants to leave the con-man's life behind him. But Ethan (Kirby), the son of his former partner, is determined to drag him back into the game — by any means necessary. For a film that revolves around pulling a major con, The Samaritan gets off to a slow start. Though it picks up halfway through with some exciting plot twists, the biggest twist of all might feel a little too familiar to some viewers.

REGAN REID

This summer can be summed up in two words: The Avengers

Box office. Fickle fair-weather audiences agree on the Marvel Comics mashup, which accounts for one-third of summer revenues

The audiences are proving far more unpredictable than the movies Hollywood has created to pack them into theatres this summer.

Studios have released a familiar assortment of action tales, family flicks and star-driven comedies since the summer-blockbuster season began in early May. Yet while overall business has been solid, fans have been choosier than usual, spending a fortune on one superhero sensation, kicking in for a handful of midline hits and generally bypassing everything else.

Movies featuring box-office heavyweights Johnny Depp (Dark Shadows), Tom Cruise (Rock of Ages) and Adam Sandler (That's My Boy) fell flat, as did the action spectacle Battle-ship.

Will Smith and Tommy Lee Jones pulled in fair crowds for Men in Black 3, though the action comedy played to a smaller audience than its predecessors. The animated tales Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted and Brave joined the action adventures Snow White & the Huntsman and Prometheus as $100 million hits.

But nearing its midpoint, a summer that looked like an easy record-breaker at the start really can be summed up in two words: The Avengers.

With $600 million domestically, the Marvel Comics superhero mashup accounts for a third of Hollywood's summer revenues, taking in more than the rest of the season's top-five movies combined.

Oliver Stone's favourite femmes

Filmmaker shares his picks for the strongest female characters in film history

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some of Oliver Stone's best-known and most-celebrated films — including Platoon, Wall Street, and Born on the Fourth of July — focus on complicated men.

But his latest, the violent drug thriller Savages, has a couple of formidable females at its centre: Salma Hayek as the stylish, ruthless leader of a Mexican drug cartel and Blake Lively as an Orange County princess who must find a resourcefulness she never knew she had.

In that spirit, Stone was kind enough to pick five of his favourite examples of strong women throughout film history. Here he is, in his own words:

To begin with, that is quite a reduction from the dozens of screen roles that are still living in my memory, including the evil queen/witch in the original Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (1937) that truly affected me. I thought Charlize Theron was terrific in the latest version and chilled me to the bone. Nor can I forget, for that matter, Cruella De Vil.

In these selections, I'm going to exclude every movie that Meryl Streep has ever done, because whatever she does rivets my attention.

Marlene Dietrich in Dishonored

In a larger-than-life fashion, I would like to cite Marlene Dietrich in several roles, but particularly for one of her first roles with Josef von Sternberg in Dishonored (1931). She plays a withering Mata Hari opposite several men, among them her nemesis — Victor McLaglen (of all people!) in an early role as the Russian spy master who figures out her act. It is essentially Dietrich's long looks, even more than her dialogue, that make the point. She talks with her eyes, undresses men and makes them give her what she wants. A portrait for all time.

Marlene Dietrich in The Scarlet Empress

In the same vein, Dietrich again for her role as a young Catherine the Great in von Sternberg's The Scarlet Empress (1934). This is a masterpiece of Sternberg's excess and also Dietrich's power. In the origins of the movie, unlike Mata Hari, she is a rather pristine, almost elegant young maiden sent off on an arranged marriage to a madman. As the movie goes into its extremes (with a surprising Sam Jaffe as the mad emperor), she grows into a true empress, and ultimately destroys him.

Faye Dunaway in Network

Faye Dunaway in Network (1976) is certainly one of the coldest bitches of all time, but is hilarious to watch in her mannerisms, Paddy Chayefsky's dialogue, and her cool toying with William Holden's love and marriage. I thought Dunaway was equally effective in Mommie Dearest (1981). She was a better Joan Crawford than even Joan Crawford. That film rips me up. Dunaway was priceless because she was not looking to gain the audience's love or sympathy in any way. Actually, it works that way better. I don't think that a lot of the actresses today have the guts to approach a role the way she did, except for Theron in some of her recent efforts.

Joan Crawford in Mildred Pierce

I know I'm leaning toward excess, but if you want a little bit of heart in this thing, I would point to Crawford herself in the great melodrama Michael Curtiz directed, Mildred Pierce (1945), which I equate with that dark, post-war period. Crawford is unbelievably good, and won the Oscar opposite Zachary Scott and Jack Carson as a woman determined to provide a better life for her daughter. Unfortunately, the daughter turns out to be a rotten apple. In the same vein, let's not forget Barbara Stanwyck in Stella Dallas (1937), or in Double Indemnity (1944) and a dozen other roles.

Hailee Steinfeld in True Grit

To go in a completely different direction, Hailee Steinfeld in True Grit (2010). She plays a 14-year-old girl with a great moral centre and moves mountains in her quest. She grows into the heart and soul of a wonderful movie by the Coen brothers, who have also compiled a long list of wonderful female heroines.

Like father, like son

Music. Adam Cohen enjoying career high at the same time as poet father, Leonard

Leonard Cohen has been enjoying such a charmed year musically that it's hard to imagine how even the masterfully morose poet could locate a downside in 2012.

His first album in more than seven years, Old Ideas, became his first to top the charts in Canada en route to platinum sales, and caused critics to collectively lose their breath. Meanwhile, the 77-year-old Montreal-born singer won the prestigious Glenn Gould Prize and the inaugural PEN songwriting prize while charting an ambitious globe-spanning tour for the second half of the year.

Well, it's been a heady year for Leonard's son, Adam, as well. The 39-year-old also released an album after a seven-year-plus layoff of his own, and the musical reinvention Like a Man is his most acclaimed work to date. In the coming weeks, he'll open for the likes of Bob Dylan, Norah Jones and Rufus Wainwright.

But his own success aside, he's enjoying his father's renaissance as much as anyone.

"I do think it's a coincidence, but at the same time, I also know that to be in his wake is a delicious and satisfying occurrence," says the younger Cohen in a telephone interview this week from Montreal, where he's in rehearsals.

"I've often said that what I think is the distinguishing trait with my father is that he remains to me pertinent and anything but a nostalgia act.

Adam Cohen's latest album, Like a Man, is garnering critical acclaim.

HANDOUT

Quoted

"Now I'm finding such joy in it. I want to celebrate the guy while he's still around."

Adam Cohen on paying tribute to his dad during performances

It gives me great pleasure to bear witness."

In fact, it was his father who in part inspired Adam Cohen's late-career left-turn.

He issued his self-titled debut back in 1998, and in 2004 followed with a Frenchlanguage album, as well as a disc as frontman of the alt-rock outfit Low Millions.

None of the records gained much traction, and he's now quick to question his own artistic priorities during those fledgling stages of his career.

"I was so preoccupied with trying to play in the highest ranks of pop music," he says. "My esthetic goals were tight jeans, four chords and sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll. I wasn't focused on the art."

Eventually, things started to seem dire. He contemplated quitting music altogether.

"I thought that I had basically tried and failed, and that I was already on the outs," he says. "When you're relegated to scoring porno flicks, writing for others, pitching for movies and commercials, a certain reality does dawn on you."

The whole time he had the songs that comprise Like a Man in his back pocket. He'd been hesitant to record them — in part because of how closely they hewed to his dad's classic work — a mistake he now considers "tragic."

So what changed his mind? When he became a father himself, he began to reconcile his relationship to his own dad's music, or as he puts it, the "family business." Afraid of the perception of nepotism, he had always shunned those influences that would inevitably creep into his music.

Now, the intimate, spare Like a Man invites those comparisons.

"This record is a claiming of an identity, an embrace and a declaration of belonging," he says. "And also, it's a coming of age record. It's reconciling where I've been with where I want to be."

"I thought carving out a path for myself meant outside of the family farm," he adds.

"I found my place is much more true within it."

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

I spent an ungodly amount of time researching music for The Secret Music of Rock (my weekly radio show) and a museum exhibit due to open in Kansas City this fall. I continually uncover some pretty wacky things that I feel duty-bound to report to you. I swear that none of this is made up.

- It's estimated that around the world, 5,000 people make a full-time living from The Beatles. This not only includes people at their record label, their publishing company and their various offices, but writers, researchers, collectors and various other full-time Beatles experts.

- Your dog thinks your music is noise. Because they perceive sound differently than we do (it has to do with their hearing ability, frequencies of their vocalizations and their resting heartbeat), dogs can't perceive music the way we do. Cats, on the other hand, have a certain appreciation for songs that have a fast beat and plenty of high notes. However, studies have proven that both dogs and cats become agitated by heavy metal.

- One of the most expensive gramophones ever produced was called an auxetophone, which amplified music by means of a convoluted compressed air system. (Electronic amplification was still 20 years in the future.) When it went on sale in 1906, it sold for $500, the equivalent of more than $12,000 today.

- Ramones drummer Marky Ramone has his own brand of marinara sauce. It's also used by a food truck in Brooklyn called Cruisin' Kitchen.

- The World Musical Chairs Championships was held last month in Amesbury, Massachusetts. More than 500 people participated. Next year's goal is to attract 8,000.

- In Japan, the maximum penalty for uploading songs for the intent for others to download them illegally is $125,000 and 10 years in jail.

- Horror rocker Rob Zombie is making a movie about the Philadelphia Flyers of the 1970s.

- Madonna is currently touring with a 200-person entourage. This includes 30 bodyguards and a personal dry cleaner. If that wasn't enough, each hotel room she books has to be stripped and furnished with furniture she has shipped in. This includes all toilet seats.

- Lady Gaga's next fashion project is to create a hat made of cockroaches. You read that correctly.

- The English Folk and Dance Society wants to make traditional songs for kids popular again. This includes rewriting Humpty Dumpty so that he survives. In the new version, he bungee jumps.

Gordie Sampson's third annual Songcamp takes place in Cape Breton, N.S., this month. HANDOUT

Instructions from the Grammy-winning guru

Music. Want to write a chart-topping country tune? Acclaimed Canadian songwriter tells how

If songs are like children to professional hit-makers, Canadian Gordie Sampson is one watchful dad.

The 40-year-old from Big Pond, N.S., has penned two chart-topping smash singles for Carrie Underwood while also dashing off songs for the likes of Keith Urban, Miranda Lambert, Blake Shelton, Martina McBride and LeAnn Rimes.

The Grammy winner estimates that he demos about 75 songs a year, so surely it's difficult to keep tabs on all his musical offspring?

"God no, you're glued to the (chart)," the personable Sampson said down the line from the East Coast this week. "First thing you do in the morning before you have your coffee is check the chart and see if it went up a point overnight."

"Not that I'd know, but I guess it's a bit like watching your stocks. You've got an investment and one starts to take off, and it goes up a point one day, and down a point the next, and you're like: 'Oh shoot, is it done? Is it going to fall off the chart?' And the next day it jumps up five places."

"So it's just this manic depression that lasts 40 weeks or so."

Of course, Sampson points out that for a professional songwriter, it's more lucrative for a song to take its time gradually climbing the chart to No. 1 — "That's the dream," he says.

If that logic surprises you, welcome to the world of behind-the-scenes hit crafting. This month, Sampson is sharing his insights with hopeful songwriters at his third annual Songcamp in Cape Breton, N.S., culminating in two live performances from his pupils on July 12 in Ingonish.

But for those other fans whose Stetsons are stuffed to the brim with good song ideas, Sampson shares the following tips for penning a chart-topping country tune:

Words are worth the world

To hear Sampson tell it, no factor is more critical to a country song's success than its lyrics.

"The lyric is more important in a country song than most other kinds of music," he said.

And what's the key to a country turn of phrase that gleams as brightly as a cowboy's belt buckle? Keep it simple, partner. Sampson said that it's important to make sure the words are general enough so that anyone listening can relate. So if a country crooner warbles a tune about a "her," Sampson says the lyric should work whether the listener thinks the pronoun refers to his wife, his mother or his dog.

Teamwork is important

Sampson says that most of the hopeful charges that come through his camp are already "amazing" songwriters. What they tend to struggle with is co-writing.

It's an important skill, particularly for professional songwriters. Sampson guesses that he hasn't written a song alone in roughly a decade.

Repetition is unavoidable

Did you just realize your newly penned masterpiece sounds exactly like another tune shuffling up the country charts? Don't panic. It happens to, literally, the best of them.

"Country music is three chords and the truth," Sampson said. "You have to figure that there's, let's say, a thousand signed writers in Nashville all writing a song a day — that's 5,000 songs a week ... all trying to use the same three chords."

Know when to quit

Sampson says that in a Nashville songwriting session, it tends to take between three and four hours to finish writing a song.

It can also take days. But sometimes the best ideas germinate and bloom quickly. Sampson and his team wrote Underwood's Grammy-winning, chart-topping smash Jesus, Take the Wheel in less than two hours. And knowing when it's time to stop tinkering can be a crucial skill.

"Sometimes, a song being written very quickly can be an indication of how great it is because the song and the lyric ends up being uninhibited — the lyric has a freedom to it," he said.

"Whereas if you sit down and pine over a lyric for three days, you tend to overwrite it in the same way (a painter) can put too many colours on a picture.... Songs can be sort of overpainted."

MOVES LIKE MAROON 5

Two members of the band talk about their permanent brush with fame, their new album, and address rumours that frontman Adam Levine might go solo

OVEREXPOSED

Adam Levine knows the game.

Seconds after sitting down for an on-camera interview and before any questions are asked, the Maroon 5 frontman playfully rattles off canned responses he's used in recent months while promoting The Voice and the band's fourth album.

"It is our poppiest record ever. We're really embracing the pop side. Christina (Aguilera) and I are all good. We don't fight," he says brightly. "I feel great about this record! Probably our best ever!"

He lets out a stagey, fake chuckle, and it's clear that the 33-year-old Los Angeles native both relishes the spotlight and has been around long enough to grow a smidge tired of its glare.

"I always loved playing music with my friends and being in a bit of a fraternity with my best friends and playing and travelling the world. To be a solo artist, I'm just not interested. I never have been."

Adam Levine, on going solo

Thus the title of the album, Overexposed, which finds the five-man group at its commercial peak ten years after its debut Songs About Jane. Last year's standalone single Moves Like Jagger, featuring the aforementioned Aguilera, stayed at

No. 1 on Billboard's Hot 100 for a month. Overexposed's lead single Payphone is now in the top five.

Levine and guitarist James Valentine spoke with The Associated Press in a recording studio about Maroon 5's "identity issues," educating young fans and why Levine doesn't plan to go solo.

Why Overexposed as an album title?

Levine: We thought we would just kind of say it before everybody else did. ... My face is on buses, which is a trip and it's weird. ... The Jagger tune propelled us into the stratosphere even more, combined with the show and a lot of things that are happening right now.

And do the songs address that as well?

Levine: They're love songs and they're songs about dysfunction but also songs about having a good time. I used to have to be miserable to write a song. And that's kind of gone away.

Valentine: It's weird because when things are going well for him, he's just not inspired to write, because he's enjoying life and enjoying being in those moments. Then as soon as things get a little hairy, then all of (the) sudden songs come out, which is good for us.

Levine: But we also have the moments that I think are just speaking more universally. ... That kind of clarity is what's best about the record. ... It's not shrouded in too much metaphor and ambiguity and poetry. I used to think about it much more poetically but I don't anymore. I'm much more concerned with making everyone understand what I mean and what I'm feeling.

Your 14-year-old fans likely don't understand what a pay phone is, though.

Levine: Payphones and Mick Jagger could be considered things that some kids don't know about. I think that actually if you did some sort of poll, you'd say: "What's a pay phone? Who is Mick Jagger?" I think you'd be shocked by how similar the responses were from that particular demographic. Valentine: We're like history teachers!

Do you feel there was a pre-Jagger Maroon 5 and a post-Jagger Maroon 5?

Valentine: Definitely. Jagger sort of laid down a blueprint for what we're going to do next. We were definitely due for a change, and I think we were definitely going to go in some new directions, but (with) the success of Jagger, of course we're going to try doing some more stuff like that.

Reading Rainbow makes a comeback — as an iPad app

Reading into the future. LeVar Burton and his classic show adapt to a new, tech-savvy generation

JOANIE
FERGUSON
Metro World News in New York

Even though Reading Rainbow is no longer on the airwaves, the children's program has not run its course.

Released Wednesday, the Reading Rainbow iPad app became the No. 1 educational app in less than two days.

LeVar Burton, the app's host (and the co-founder and curator-in-chief for RRRKidz, Inc., the company behind it) catches us up with the series' quick turnaround for the newest generation.

How soon after Reading Rainbow stopped airing did you know you needed to adapt it to a new medium?

Fairly immediately. All the press that it got, and that sort of public outcry, was surprising.

Kids today...

Metro asked LeVar Burton how technology is changing the reading experience for kids today.

- I think the reading experience itself, the idea of sitting down, whether it's in a book or on an electronic device, and engaging yourself in a narrative, that will never change. Storytelling will never go out of style. Neither will the human desire to travel in our imaginations through good books. It doesn't matter whether it's on a device or in a booklet. I believe we will reach, probably in the not-too-distant future, a decision that it doesn't make much sense anymore to tear down trees to make books.

It really got our attention. We thought, it's not over for this brand. It's ripe for a reinvention of itself, and we started focusing on it immediately.

Reading Rainbow host LeVar Burton
GETTY IMAGES

Why is now the right time to bring the show back?

I think it's just that weird confluence of a lot of factors. When we began this journey, the iPad hadn't even come out yet. And when it did, it really helped inform what we were in the process of figuring out. Another factor is that there is a whole generation of adults now who grew up on this show, and they really want something that they can share with their kids that they feel good about.

YouTube comment mashup book material?

MICHELLE
CASTILLO
Metro World News in London

We've all heard of mashup artists who take clips of popular songs and put them together to create a new composition. We've seen videos from YouTube users who take clips from other videos and make a new project out of them. Now, two men from Germany have attempted to string together YouTube user comments and create Amazon Kindle e-books out of them.

"The mashup/remix is the main cultural concept of our times," Ghost Writers co-creator Luc Gross told Metro World News by email.

"(It) always has been. With the universal media — the metamediun computer — this only becomes more obvious."

But, digital publisher Gross — who is also known as "Traumawein" — and Berlin-based programmer and media artist Bernhard Bauch haven't just made mashup books: They've created a product composed of user-generated content that is intended to be sold directly to the user.

Due to the Ghost Writers project, thousands of e-book miniseries composed from user comments flooded the Amazon Kindle database, with titles like "A lot was been hard and Weird song you cute."

The project was intended to raise authorship questions about who rightfully owns YouTube comments and videos and inspire other ideas that are conducive to the e-book format.

Gross explained that Bauch created a "comment suckers" program that pulled user comments from the YouTube videos. The themes of the books were drawn from the different Amazon Kindle categories, and then turned into dramas by a "book compiler" program.

The first thousand books they released were about kittens. The last hundred books included topics such as discussions about violence and children who blamed their parents on Facebook.

While the stories might not have been completely grammatically correct, the bots were able to put the comments together in a way that created a cohesive story — a wacky, nonsensical narrative but a story nonetheless.

"To us, all of those dramas make sense," Gross said. "Besides the stories, they all hold a certain beauty of poetry. It's a YouTube slang on its very own."

Gross' favourite title was "Sparta My Have." "Though the more you hear a title, the more it becomes a classic," he said.

Then Kindle bots placed them for sale on Amazon's e-book database, a service that the artists frequently bought their digital publications from.

The creators decided to release a large quantity of books because they felt it would "generate much more impact" than a few selected titles.

Unfortunately, Amazon Kindle pulled all the books because they "could lead to a poor customer experience." However, the creators intend to release a Twitter stream with all the texts starting June 26.

Ballet lovers dancing for joy as their beloved art hits the mainstream

Tutu trend. What started with the film Black Swan has turned into a series of TV shows and sold-out ballet performances

"I'm really digging it," says Ronnie Underwood, a buff, tattooed motorcycle enthusiast, auto racer and former football player who also happens to be a ballet dancer.

Oh, and a reality show star. Underwood, 30, is one of the main characters on Breaking Pointe, the CW series about the lives and loves, trials and tribulations of the dancers at Ballet West, a highly regarded company in Salt Lake City.

The season comes to a finale next week, and suspense is high: Will Ronnie, Rex, Christina and Allison be ready for their close-up? Or will opening-night jitters, not to mention relationship issues, derail their hard work? But we digress. What Underwood is "digging" is the broader fact that ballet, often relegated to a dusty, forgotten shelf in the current culture, seems to be having its moment in the sun.

Besides Breaking Pointe, there's the ABC Family show Bunheads, starring the Tony-winning actress Sutton Foster (the title is dance-speak for ballerinas, a reference to their neatly coiled hairdos). And hugely popular dance-competition shows like Dancing with the Stars have featured guest turns by ballet dancers like Jose Manuel Carreno, recently retired from American Ballet Theatre, and the ballerina Tiler Peck of New York City Ballet.

There's also a popular documentary film garnering praise, First Position, which tracks young dancers in a global competition. But it's a much more famous 2010 film that gets much of the credit for starting the ballet mini-craze: Darren Aronofsky's cool and edgy Black Swan, which starred Natalie Portman and brought a whole new vibe to that stuffy classic, Swan Lake.

"Black Swan really did bring ballet into the mainstream pop culture consciousness in a way it hadn't been for a while — and that was great for us in the ballet world," says Rob Daniels, managing director at New York City Ballet. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Black Swan makes a flap

New York City Ballet managing director Rob Daniels says the company sold out its runs of Swan Lake for two seasons after the film.

"And it definitely felt the houses were younger — that young people were coming who'd seen the film and were curious about ballet," Daniels says.

Not that there was any lasting economic boon for NYCB or other ballet companies — like arts institutions, dance companies have had to struggle in a harsh economy.

But those in the dance world say, give it time — they're simply buoyed by the thought that more people may come to know and appreciate the art of ballet.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Was TomKat marriage running on Cruise control?

What started as a rather titillating celebrity divorce is now devolving into a sadly familiar one. Tom Cruise has "absolutely no contact with Katie," according to website TMZ, with Cruise talking only to daughter Suri, 6, on the phone, once a day.

Things are "really bitter now," the source tells the site, with Katie "using Suri as a weapon." Meanwhile, photographers caught Holmes laughing at an ice cream parlor with Suri as bodyguards stood on watch.

"He has been Tom Cruise for 30 years," she told Elle magazine, in their just-released issue, which may have offered clues about the divorce to come.

"I know who I am and where I am and where I want to go, so I want to focus on that. I definitely feel much more comfortable in my own skin. I feel sexier," she continued. "I'm starting to come into my own. It's like a new phase."

With Cruise in the news, the paps are suddenly interested in Nicole Kidman, his ex, again.

They caught her having — gasp! — dinner with her husband, country singer Keith Urban, at a Florida restaurant, according to Us Magazine. The 45-year-old divorced Cruise in 2001, after an 11-year marriage.

Pushing the vegetarian envelope

A new vegetarian cookbook by two Montreal chefs is pushing the envelope by offering readers dishes that are both classic and internationally inspired.

"From a chef's point of view, it is more important to take a quality product such as locally grown fresh vegetables and use good techniques so that you can have a wonderful result," says Igor Brotto.

He has co-authored The Vegetarian Kitchen Table Cookbook with Olivier Guiricé (Robert Rose, $27.95, paperback).

Sweet strawberry-chocolate endings off of the grill

Grilled Dessert Pizza. Since you'll be barbecuing this weekend anyway, why not get creative?

For a backyard get-together, dessert has got to be easy and easy going.

And since you're probably making the rest of your meal on the grill anyway, why not use it to prep dessert, too?

This dessert pizza is incredibly quick and versatile. Top it with whatever sweet treats you like, or consider making individual ones and having a dessert pizza bar so people can select their own toppings.

Be sure to let the pizza dough rest at room temperature for about 30 minutes before trying to roll it out. Otherwise, it will be too stiff to work with and will resist stretching.

1. Heat a grill to medium-high.

2. Scatter half of the sugar on a counter top. Place the pizza dough over the sugar and roll out into the sugar. Sprinkle the top of the dough with the remaining sugar, then roll again to press the sugar into the top. You should have a rough circle about 12 inches in diameter.

3. Transfer the dough to a baking sheet, then head out to the grill.

4. Use an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs to oil the grill grates.

5. Transfer pizza dough directly onto the grates. Cook for 3 minutes per side, or until cooked and lightly browned.

6. Return the crust to the baking sheet and immediately sprinkle the chocolate bits over the top. Wait 1 minute to allow the chocolate to melt, then use a butter knife or silicone spatula to spread the melted chocolate evenly over the crust. Sprinkle with the chopped strawberries and the flaked coconut. Enjoy warm.

Sip your way back to the origins of wine

LIQUID ASSETS

Forget about the fashion, music and auto industries. None are driven by trends more aggressively than the booze business.

While some sub-segments virtually re-invent themselves every year, others simply go back to the future to find the next big thing.

The wine world spins like a top on this axis. Need proof? Though floundering for years, the juice from France and Italy is back on top again.

As consumers sip their way back to the origins of wine making, some polarizing flavour profiles are reaching out and grabbing the palates of wine lovers with a grip that even Iron Man would envy.

The hottest "what the heck" wine that has found fame is white moscato. Its romantic sounding name is actually the Italian translation of muscat — one of the oldest families of grapes in the world.

International wine-makers have borrowed the term with E & J Gallo's Barefoot Moscato ($9.95 - $11.99) a prime example of the style's balance of easy-drinking, plush, white fruit sweetness and low alcohol.

Well chilled, moscato makes for a refreshing warm weather sipper and a fine match with fresh fruit, most cheeses and sugary desserts. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Serena powers her way into Wimbledon final

Tennis. Four-time Wimbledon champion hits record 24 aces

Serena Williams wins with so much more than serving, of course.

Her groundstrokes are intimidating. Her superb speed and anticipation fuel unparalleled court-covering defence. Her returns are outstanding.

When that serve is on-target, though, it sure is something special, quite possibly the greatest in the history of women's tennis.

Lashing a tournament-record 24 aces at up to 120 mph, and doing plenty of other things well, too, four-time Wimbledon champion Williams overpowered No. 2-seeded Victoria Azarenka of Belarus 6-3, 7-6 (6) Thursday to reach her seventh final at the All England Club.

"Isn't that something?" said Williams' father, Richard, after watching his daughter win on Centre Court. "She was really trying, you know?"

On Saturday, the 30-year-old Williams will try to become the first woman at least that age to win a major tournament since Martina Navratilova, who was 33 when she won Wimbledon in 1990.

"The older I get, the better I serve, I feel," Williams said. "I don't know how it got better. I really don't know. It's not like I go home and I work on baskets and baskets of serves. Maybe it's a natural shot for me."

Her next opponent will be No. 3 Agnieszka Radwanska of Poland, who reached her first Grand Slam final at age 23 by playing steady as can be during a 6-3, 6-4 victory over No. 8 Angelique Kerber of Germany.

"After a couple of games, I just relaxed a little bit," said Radwanska, who made only six unforced errors, one in the second set. "I was really focusing on every point."

Williams won 20 of her 24 service points in the first set and 17 in a row in one stretch.

And this performance didn't come against a slouch: Azarenka won the Australian Open in January as part of a 26-0 start to this season, was playing in her third semifinal in the past five majors, and would have returned to No. 1 in the rankings if she had managed to beat Williams. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flames bring Backlund back on one-year deal

The Calgary Flames announced Thursday that they have signed forward Mikael Backlund to a one-year contract worth $725,000 US.

Backlund had four goals and seven assists in 41 games for Calgary last season. He has 15 goals and 31 assists in 138 career games with the Flames.

The native of Vasteras, Sweden, was the Flames' first-round pick (24th overall) in the 2007 NHL draft.

"Mikael has an opportunity to step up and attempt to secure a top-two-line centre position with our club," Flames general manager Jay Feaster said in a statement. "He is a very talented player who skates well, has excellent vision and possesses a strong skill set."

Re-evaluation for Week 2

Columnist Dan Toth discusses why Simon's best-receiver-ever coronation is premature and in which city a QB controversy is already brewing, among other CFL thoughts

CFL EXTRA POINTS

No smiles yet for sputtering Jyles

Can't remember the last time fans wanted their QB pulled when LEADING by a touchdown, but that's what happens when drives continually stall. New Eskimos starter Steven Jyles is thankful kicker Grant Shaw connected his four field goals in a Week 1 win over Toronto, but Jyles' ability to find the end zone is a work in progress.

Easier being Green?

The Green Gods have put to rest six months of second-guessing among the faithful, terrified the team would struggle again in 2012. A road win over Hamilton in Week 1 has restored faith in the Riders. They haven't beaten a West Division opponent since the 2010 West final in Calgary, but can end that streak with a win Sunday over Edmonton.

Pierce protection problem persists

We established last year that the Bombers were going nowhere if they couldn't protect QB Buck Pierce. The injury-prone pivot was sidelined by a knee injury when enduring one of four sacks last week in B.C., although he's expected to play Friday in Montreal. Still, Pierce won't succeed and might not survive the 2012 season without protection from the pass rush.

Simon's numbers don't say it all

Don't be too quick to anoint Geroy Simon the best receiver in CFL history, even though he vaulted over Milt Stegall into first overall in career receiving yards. Stegall achieved his numbers with less proficient QBs, Ben Cahoon had better hands, Allen Pitts was tougher to defend and old-timers will tell you Hal Patterson was a combination of all those traits.

Tempering Tate's great start in Calgary

The Stampeders like life without Henry Burris, at least through one game. New Stamps starter Drew Tate is living up to expectations in Cowtown with a 300-yard passing game in the season opener. The big test now is playing three games in 12 days during their annual exodus East during Calgary Stampede Week.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20. A family feud is in the cards today but now that you know that, you can limit the chances of a serious falling-out by watching what you say.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21. No matter how irritating someone may be, you must not let them get under your skin. Be on the move as much as possible today.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. What happens today will only be important if you choose to let it be important. That applies especially to money matters and business negotiations.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You will be both assertive and ambitious today, which could cause problems if others get the impression that you care for nothing but your own glory. Tone it down a bit.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. You have something to say. It's something you think is important, but you have got to accept that, in saying it, you may upset a few people.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You may wonder why you have been singled out for so much good fortune, but in the greater scheme of things, nothing happens without a reason. Enjoy what you get today.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. You have what it takes to compete at the highest level, so don't let fear of failure hold you back. Get out there into the world and show creativity.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. If you are the kind of Scorpio who loves to travel, you could find yourself a long way from home over the next 24 hours. Don't worry about how you are going to get back.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. You will have energy to spare over the next 24 hours, but it is your Sagittarian enthusiasm that will lead to success. Focus on what you are good at and on what you enjoy.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 20. You're under a lot of pressure and because the pressure comes mainly from partners and colleagues, you could fall out with someone today.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb. 18. You can achieve some remarkable things over the next few days, so forget about the easy life and push yourself harder than ever before.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. You've had your fill of talk and you've had your fill of trying to plan things out in great detail — all you want to do is get busy on a project that you believe in. SALLY BROMPTON

GOD'S PLAN FOR YOU

God loves you and he has a divine plan set for your life, for the thoughts that the Lord thinks towards you are thoughts of peace and not of evil, to give you a future and a hope. He will guide your steps into the fulfillment of that plan because your heart plans your way, but the Lord directs your steps.
